'The Deuce' returns for its third and final season

TV Media

There's nothing worse than a sudden cancellation. When a show ends abruptly, fans are left wishing and wondering, but a slow, deliberate ending can leave us satisfied in a way that enhances the series, even if we're sad it's over. Starting Monday, Sept. 9, fans of the HBO series "The Deuce" can begin to experience that slow wind down. Season 3 is its last, and knowing that beforehand has given its showrunners a chance to offer their audience a conclusion that feels natural.

Olivia Luccardi in "The Deuce"

"The Deuce," named after slang for a section of Manhattan's 42nd St. that was once considered the city's red-light district, depicts the eclectic community of that section of New York City during the 1970s. It's creators, David Simon and George Pelecanos, are best known for creating the HBO megahit "The Wire," and the stars of the series are no less qualified. The show stars Maggie Gyllenhaal ("The Honourable Woman") and James Franco ("The Disaster Artist," 2017) as two (well, three, actually) people living their lives in and around New York's seedy underbelly from the early 1970s onwards. I say three because Franco plays twins.

Other cast members have been promoted this season, going from smaller recurring roles to regulars as the timeline of "The Deuce" jumps ahead several years and new characters emerge as central figures. Among those receiving meatier roles are Olivia Luccardi ("It Follows," 2014) and David Krumholtz ("Hail, Caesar!," 2016), who play the young escort Melissa and director Harvey Wasserman, respectively.

The supporting cast of "The Deuce" is strong from top to bottom (a trademark of David Simon's television shows), but the leads have received special attention for their performances in the show's first two seasons. Gyllenhaal plays Eileen "Candy" Merrell, a former street hustler who eventually gets involved in the production of, well, unsavory films. Candy's arc has been one of self-improvement and personal discovery, as she fought her way up from the gutter to a job that has a new sense of legitimacy (but also poses new risks and challenges). It's no surprise that the hard-working, Oscar-nominated actress has received constant, glowing praise for her portrayal of Candy — she was also nominated in the Best Actress category at the 75th Golden Globe Awards last year.

Franco has also been praised for his performance in "The Deuce," but in his case, it has been less for rendering an excellent, original character than for the technical prowess of his work. Franco plays twin brothers Vincent and Frankie Martino in the show. Vincent began the series as a down-on-his-luck bartender working long hours to provide for his family. His brother, Frankie, is more of a loose cannon; he's a gambler and occasional scam artist who has ties to the mob.

In Seasons 1 and 2, the brothers saw their fortunes rise as they took advantage of their mob connections (sometimes reluctantly) and got involved in bar ownership and brothels. The Vincent and Frankie characters have been criticized for being stereotypical "New York guy" caricatures, but Franco has received almost universal acclaim for his dual performances, which regularly require him to act in scenes with only himself. His ability to perform in a convincing manner opposite thin air (that is subsequently filled in by seamless CGI) has captured the attention of fans and critics alike.

Several years ago, after the finale of the first season of "The Deuce," multiple members of the cast and creative team indicated that the show had a roughed-out narrative designed to last for three seasons.

Back then, the future of the series was in doubt, and there was no guarantee it would be renewed enough times to make it to its natural conclusion — HBO isn't above canceling critically acclaimed shows when the ratings aren't there, and ratings for "The Deuce" have never been particularly strong. Instead of the twists, turns and cliffhangers that propel so many shows to must-watch status, "The Deuce" simply depicts the lives of its characters in a realistic, believable way and allows the narrative to play out naturally. In the end, HBO allowed the show to run its full course, and audiences can expect a solid, thought-out conclusion instead of the abrupt or scattershot ending that can plague shows canceled before their time.

The third season of "The Deuce" will replicate the five-year timeline jump that occurred between Seasons 1 and 2. The show's first season was set in the early 1970s, the second played out five years later, and this one takes us five more years into the future to the start of the 1980s.

The season finale of Season 2 hinted at the goals of the final season when Harvey gave Candy a preview of an emerging form of technology: the VCR. The final season will look at the impact of that technology. It will also take a look at the emergence of HIV and AIDS in New York City in the early 1980s, and the devastating toll the epidemic took on New York's LGBTQ community. You can also expect the show to delve into the early '80s cocaine trade.

"The Deuce" begins its final season on Monday, Sept. 9, on HBO.

Saturday Best Bets

Michelle Miller, Anthony Mason and Dana Jacobson co-host "CBS This Morning Saturday"

CBS This Morning Saturday

27 12 8:00 AM

Co-hosts Anthony Mason, Michelle Miller and Dana Jacobson kick off Saturday with national and global news, and interviews with interesting people in this new episode. The program often features appearances by celebrity chefs, authors and musicians.

Say Yes to the Dress

TLC 8:00 PM

While Randy's busy in Barcelona showing his second collection things go drastically wrong in this new episode. Chelsea's princess dream dress has gone missing from the store and crazy rich Asian Bride, Cheryl, finds a fault in every gown she tries on.

48 Hours

27 12 9:00 PM

Correspondents investigate shocking true-crime cases and real-life dramas in back-to-back episodes of this news magazine. Since premiering in 1988, the program has helped exonerate wrongly convicted people and led to the re-opening of cold cases.

Restaurant: Impossible

FOOD 9:00 PM

Cameras follow Chef Robert Irvine to Muncie, where he finds a run-down retro diner in dire straits in this new episode. The owner's health is failing and her daughter hasn't been able to step up to the plate and take over.

'Girl Meets Farm' returns with a new season

Yeh walks you through all the steps for her barbecue pulled pork nachos, radishes with smoked butter, candy bar salads and a grilled orange soda. Other themes this season will cover Yeh's life as a new mom (check out her baby meal prep on mynamisyeh.com) and will include Oktoberfest, Halloween, a Midwest potluck, party bites and "Friendsgiving."

If you're new to the show and are wondering where the "Farm" in the title comes from, the series centers on the big-city transplants' new life in the Midwest (specifically North Dakota) where Nick runs a sugar beet farm.

Farm life is what the show is all about, but Yeh's joyful personality is behind its appeal. She also brings a little bit of her background to everything she cooks, whether it's an Instagram-worthy cake, a more adventurous version of a Midwest staple or a new favorite inspired by her Chinese and Jewish heritage. And the result is an entertaining mix of new and familiar flavors that are a feast for the eyes.

So tune in on Sunday, Sept. 8, to find out why "Girl Meets Farm" is the highest-rated daytime show in the Food Network Sunday lineup.

a new mom: in March, Yeh and husband Nick welcomed their first child, daughter Bernadette (Bernie).

A Juilliard-trained percussionist-turned-food blogger, cookbook author and TV host, Yeh has already made her mark on the food entertainment industry. Now, she's ready to invite us back into her farmhouse kitchen on Sunday, Sept. 8, for an all-new season of "Girl Meets Farm."

If you're looking for movie night-friendly eats and treats, the Season 4 premiere is the episode to watch.

Molly Yeh hosts "Girl Meets Farm"

By Michelle Rose
TV Media

She's been dubbed the "Pioneer Woman" for millennials, but if you've tuned in to "Girl Meets Farm," you know that Molly Yeh shines in her own kind of light.

Just this year, the rising Food Network star earned both a Daytime Emmy and a James Beard Award nomination. She recently signed an exclusive agreement for new episodes of her Food Network show and more digital content. And she's

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Are there any updates on the second season of "The Night Manager"?

A: Yes, but they amount to the same lack of a conclusion we had before. The bottom line is we still don't know if it will happen.

"The Night Manager," starring Tom Hiddleston ("Avengers: Endgame," 2019), Hugh Laurie ("House") and Olivia Colman ("The Crown"), originally aired as a miniseries on AMC here and the BBC in the U.K., an adaptation of the John le Carré novel of the same name. It was a huge critical and popular hit, though, so naturally the networks and fans wanted more.

The question was then, and still is, can/will they make another season without source material to draw from?

The latest news is that the head writer and director of the first season have both said they won't participate in a second. Director Susanne Bier and writer David Farr both have the same concerns about a second run: They're afraid of doing, in Bier's words (taken from an interview with DigitalSpy.com), "something that does not live up to the level of Season 1. That would be a really bad idea."

Nonetheless, there was great optimism a year ago, when the producers announced that they had hired a team of writers for the second season — it didn't include Farr, but it did feature Charles Cumming, another spy novelist whom many have called the next le Carré.

Cumming said in an interview on the spy-lit podcast Spybrary that le Carré had given his blessing to a second season, and that "we did quite a good job and we are nearly there."

Yes, that was a year ago and there's been no word of progress since, but bear in mind the first season aired three years ago, so no one seems to be in any rush.

Q: I recently saw a TV commercial for Carfax, and the voice of the fox sounded familiar. It made me wonder if it's the voice of Gobo from "Fraggle Rock" on HBO. Is it?

A: There are a few reasons why we can be certain that's not the same voice.

The first is that Jerry Nelson, the legendary Muppeteer and voice of Gobo Fraggle, would have been too busy, and too pricey, to do commercial work by the time the Car Fox character debuted in 2009.

The second is that the Car Fox ads continue to be made today, seven years after Nelson's death.

Brent Halfyard, the actor voicing Car Fox, is, on the other hand, likely much more affordable (no offense to him), and very much alive. His biggest role so far — besides the Fox himself, who has built a weird sort of viral fame — has been narrating a few seasons of the Investigation Discovery series "Very Bad Men" in the early 2010s. Otherwise, most of his work has been other commercials, along with a long-running gig as the voice of the Vancouver-area station Knowledge TV. All this is respectable, even enviably steady work for a voice actor, but nothing like the fame Nelson achieved.

Lecy Goranson in "The Conners" America's Got Talent

5 18 8:00 PM
Brilliant performers who've competed all summer long find out which act will win it all in this season finale. The thrilling high stakes talent competition features singers, dancers, acrobats, comedians, animal acts and more.

The Conners

36 9 10:00 PM
When Ben (Jay R. Ferguson) offers Mark (Ames McNamara) free piano lessons, Darlene (Sara Gilbert) sees it as a chance to test his parenting skills in this rebroadcast. Meanwhile, Jackie (Laurie Metcalf) throws a baby shower for Becky (Alicia Goranson).

Wednesday Best Bets

Ester Dean in "Songland" Schooled

36 9 8:30 PM

CB (Brett Dier) finally works up the courage to tell Lainey (AJ Michalka) how he really feels in this rebroadcast. However, his big reveal goes awry when Dr. Barry Goldberg (Troy Gentile) arrives. Elsewhere, Glascott (Tim Meadows) learns a lesson.

SEAL Team

27 12 9:00 PM

When Ray (Neil Brown Jr.) gets separated from his colleagues while they're in enemy territory, the rest of the Bravo Team members race to find him in this rebroadcast. Series star David Boreanaz directed the episode.

Songland

5 18 9:00 PM

Aspiring songwriters get the opportunity of a lifetime as they work with music industry experts in the hopes that a major recording artist will choose to record their song in this summer series. Ester Dean, Ryan Tedder and Shane McAnally serve as mentors.

Snowfall

FX 10:00 PM

Franklin (Damson Idris) begins to walk along a different path as life in South Central starts to change in this season finale. The gritty drama chronicles the early days of the crack cocaine epidemic in Los Angeles in the 1980s.
